

A Brief History

Written by QGI Staff

Tuesday, 30 December 2008 18:04 - Last Updated Sunday, 26 February 2017 03:34

At Quality General, we believe in providing unparalleled service and quality while establishing relationships with our clients and collaborators. What was once a small business is now a multi-million dollar corporation.

Phyllis Wada, President of Quality General, has lead our team of engineers and superintendents since 2000. Quality General maintains its presence within the contracting industry not just as a masonry subcontractor but specializes in structural and sub-division concrete, general contracting, and design-build projects.

With more than 35 years of experiece in the construction field, Quality General provides excellent workmanship with a quarter of its volume consisting of various general contrating operations. Over the last 10 years, we have developed in-house capabilities to service general contractors in design/build projects. Our engineers and architects assist design and construction teams with this process.

Recent technological advances within the concrete and masonry industries have revolutionized the way Quality General has done business. With state-of-the-art equipment and the latest technologies, Quality General holds an advantage in today's unstable economic climate.